

Mid Month HDR Update

Editing Bootcamp

Stop treating editing as just proofreading - learn how professional editors transform rough drafts into compelling academic arguments. This intensive three-day bootcamp teaches you the skills to become your own editor, a crucial capability for your entire academic career.

Working with Professor Inger Mewburn (@Thesis Whisperer), you'll discover what examiners actually look for and how to deliver it. The bootcamp combines focused learning sessions with hands-on editing time using both traditional and AI-assisted techniques. You'll learn how to identify and fix the five major "dissertation dysfunctions" that can derail your examination success.

Key topics include:

- Structural editing for coherent argumentation,
- Dealing with information overload,
- Eliminating repetition and waffle,
- Creating flow at every level,
- Maintaining consistency throughout.

Each session blends expert instruction with practical application time, ensuring you make real progress on your dissertation while developing essential editing skills. You'll leave with a personalised editing checklist and the confidence to polish your work to examination standard.

Designed for candidates with a complete or nearly complete draft ready for refinement. Bring your manuscript and prepare to transform it from rough draft to scholarly contribution. Applications close the night before.
