#SoME, Social Media for Researchers

Welcome

Come along to our official welcome lunch, generously supported by PARSA. Meeting new research students from all over campus whilst you listen to inspiring talks from our world-leading researchers. This is your chance to connect with the broader research community at ANU and be formally welcomed into our intellectual tradition of "Naturam Primum Congroscore Reuine": first know the nature of things.

Research Integrity Training

Research can raise all kinds of ethical issues for research students and supervisors. This short online course will take you through the basic principles of ethical research. It will introduce you to the key policies and procedures surrounding research work at ANU and your rights and responsibilities. This course is an official milestone in your candidature progress and must be completed before your Thesis proposal.

TPR Toolkit

The thesis proposal review is the first big milestone in your candidature where you are asked to produce a substantial piece of writing. This program is designed specifically to help first-year students. If you are entering a research degree straight out of an honours program or a professional returning to study after a break, we will immerse you in our intensive "writing studio" where you will learn the secrets of highly productive academic writers. Along the way, you will pick up a range of tactics and strategies to assist you along your PhD journey.

Shut-Up & Write

Shut up and write turns the idea of writing from solitary to a social experience. The concept is simple, meet up with others in a cafe and write every week. Shut-Up makes writing more fun and relaxing, meeting Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Signall's Cafe in Lenswells Hall. PARSA buys the coffee, so come and join in.

#SoME

Want to understand social media? Are you eager to start sharing your research online, but don’t know where to start? Or do you want to use social media to create performance anxiety or can you? Researchers have limited time and energy to devote to online engagement - this course will teach you how to make the best use of your available time to create material for a wide range of social media platforms. Join the #SoME workshop to learn how to use social media like an expert. Spaces are strictly limited.
