

If it just doesn't seem right ... it could be fraud

ANU has zero tolerance for fraud

What is fraud?

Fraud is dishonestly obtaining a benefit, or causing a loss. It could include theft of assets, false invoices, taking or offering a bribe, undeclared conflicts of interest, dishonestly releasing information and misuse of University resources.

Who is responsible for fraud?

We're all responsible for taking action when we suspect fraud. It's our reputation and integrity that's at risk if we turn a blind eye.

Who do I contact?

If you suspect fraud, speak to your supervisor or manager. You can also report it directly to director.governance@anu.edu.au

Australian
National University